A new one-stop business catering for special occasions has just launched in West Winch.

Exquisite Events has been set up by Natalie Pilgrim with help from her business partner Darren Gibson.

Whether it's a wedding, proms night or celebratory party, it will provide clients with everything they need, from planning and managing the event itself to dressing up for the occasion.

The business, which is run on an appointments-only basis, operates from a log cabin, where clients can try on dresses, have their hair styled in the salon as well as receive beauty treatments such as make-up, manicures and pedicures.

Said Darren: "There are up to eight people involved, who are self-employed but will come in to meet clients. One of these is a seamstress who can carry out alterations and help with fittings."

"Our service means that someone can come in, try on the dress and have their hair and make-up done all at the same time."

Dresses to suit a wide range of budgets are available in sizes from six to 36. There is also an instalment plan available to help people buy the dress they can afford.

To mark its launch until the end of December, Exquisite

Events is offering free dress consultations and any hair and beauty services will be discounted by 25 per cent.

For people looking for a Christmas and New Year dress, gown or bridal package, it is offering 50 per cent off all dresses as well as 25 per cent off all prom dress purchases, again until the end of December.

Top award for quality homes in Norfolk

Developments in Burnham Market and Brancaster Staithe were among those put forward by a Holt-based firm as part of its entry for a national house-building award.

The entry impressed judges and Fleur Developments was named Best Small Housebuilder in the WhatHouse? awards announced on November 16. Its entry included its development at Foundry Field in Burnham Market and the house, Sea Glass, at Brancaster Staithe.

Founded in 2007 by directors Juliette Hopkins and Joff Brooker, Fleur has been building a reputation for itself as a quality developer.

Juliette said: "We're absolutely delighted to have won this award and to have our passion for building good-looking homes recognised nationally."
